Biography/Administrative History
The Residency Training Program is a three-and-one-half years program. Its aim is to prepare future psychiatrists with a broad and intensive education in both traditional and contemporary theory of the origin and causes of mental health and its various methods of treatment. The program includes clinical supervision, training in inpatient and outpatient treatment, child psychiatry, and intensive seminar programs. Approximately 14 residents are appointed to the first postgraduate year and 16 each to the postgraduate year 2, 3, and 4. It also includes training rotations at participating hospitals -- San Francisco General Hospital, Veterans Administration, and Langley Porter.
