Contributing Institution: Chicano Studies Research Center Library

Title: The Joan Moore Papers

Creator: Moore, Joan W.

Identifier/Call Number: 96

Physical Description: 28 linear feet

Date (inclusive): 1963-1996

Abstract: This collection of approximately 28 linear feet of papers represents the background research underlying Dr. Joan Moore's groundbreaking books and research studies. Chief among them are her books: Homeboy: Gangs, Drugs and Prison in the Barrios of Los Angeles (Temple University Press, 1979) and Going Down to the Barrio (Temple University Press, 1992) Both of which are widely respected for their insights into Mexican American gangs. Dr. Moore's "Drug Posses, Gangs and the Underclass in Milwaukee" study focuses on the African American community. Methodologically these studies expand the Chicago School's community research approach by incorporating actual gang members into the research team. More importantly, Dr. Moore's findings have provided important theoretical insights into deviance and social problems.

- Series 5. Interviews and Questionnaires
- Series 6. Chicano Pinto Research Project
- Series 7. Police Data
- Series 8. Cliques Statistics
- Series 9. Publications
- Series 10. Audio Tapes

Biography

Dr. Moore has made a major contribution to the social sciences in the area of crime, drugs and gangs. Arguably, no scholar is as widely cited as is Dr. Joan Moore in this field. She has numerous articles, book chapters, and books in this area. Her two books Homeboy: Gangs, Drugs and Prison in the Barrios of Los Angeles (Temple University Press, 1979) and Going Down to the Barrio (Temple University Press, 1992) are widely respected for their insights into Mexican American gangs. Homeboy is considered by many a "classic" in this field. More recently, her "Drug Posses, Gangs and the Underclass in Milwaukee" study focuses on the African American community. Methodologically these studies expand the Chicago School's community research approach by incorporating actual gang members into the research team. More importantly, Dr. Moore's findings have provided important theoretical insights into deviance and social problems.

Processing Information

Processed in 2012 by an unknown person. Finding aid edited in 2020 by Jason Lowder under the supervision of Doug Johnson. The editing occurred during the global pandemic so there was no physical access to the material.

Scope and Contents

This collection consists mostly of research compiled by Joan Moore for various studies she conducted, particularly on two Los Angeles-based Mexican American gangs: White Fence and El Hoyo Maravilla. It includes dozens of transcripts of interviews with gang members and their families, as well as some of the original audio tapes. There are also secondary
